Portfolio Manager Commentary

After seven consecutive months of positive returns, global equity markets bucked the trend in September as most major markets fell sharply, with a slew of bad news weighing on investor sentiment. Global risk appetite waned on the possibility of higher inflation and tighter monetary policy, a stalemate over the US Debt ceiling, potential contagion from an increasingly worrisome Chinese economy and market as well as ongoing concerns around global growth as the COVID-19 Delta variant proves ever more relentless.

Given the discouraging macroeconomic and market environment, the MSCI World Index fell 4.1% in the month. Looking at data since 1964 for the S&P500, the month of September has historically been the worst for US markets, and this again seems to be the case as the S&P500 fell 4.8% in USD. Major tech shares proved to be the culprit as the tech-heavy Nasdaq fared poorer, falling 5.7% in USD terms. Elsewhere in developed markets, European equities (MSCI Europe ex-UK) fared worse, falling 5.5% in USD, while UK (FTSE 100) held up better given its less stretched valuations, falling only 2.2%. Emerging markets (MSCI EM USD) fared marginally better during September, falling only 4%. While the index was weighed down by growth concerns in China, stemming from fears regarding Evergrande's (the world's largest real estate developer) $300 billion debt pile and a possible default, strong performance from Indian and Russian markets, whose significant exposure to energy counters has benefitted from the recent sharp increases in energy prices, helped curb losses. Global market returns were, however, cushioned by a sharp weakening in the rand which expectedly sold off 3.7% amid the global fears noted above.

On the local front, equities took their cue from global markets as the Capped SWIX sold off 1.4%. Resources were once again the worst performing sector, falling 12.3% in the month as industrial and precious metal miners sold off aggressively in line with falling commodity prices amid fears around Chinese demand (Industrial) and chip shortages (precious metals). Industrials were marginally negative in the month, falling 1.4% as local retailers sold off, while financial shares continued their impressive run, posting positive gains of 1.3%. Local property held up marginally better, falling only 0.8% in the month with the sector continuing to be carried by the higher yielding counters.

Turning to fixed income, global bond yields sold off in the month as fears around inflation and tighter monetary policy resurfaced, exacerbated by concerns of a potential US default as politicians quarrel over the raising of the US debt ceiling. As a result, global bond returns were negative 1.8% for the month in USD, although rand weakness pushed the rand returns into positive territory. As with local equity, local bonds also took their cue from global markets. Local bond yields rose in the month, with the long-end rising greater off the back of global risk-off sentiment. As a result, ALBI returns for the month were negative 2.1%. With near-term inflation locally well contained, ILBs were better off than nominals as yields on shorter-dated ILBs came down in the month, contributing to ILBs (IGOV) delivering a positive return of 0.3%. Finally, local cash again returned 0.3% as the South African Reserve Bank's Monetary Policy Committee unanimously voted to keep interest rates unchanged in the month.

Risk Appetite: Moderate

The portfolio typically has moderate equity exposure which may result in capital volatility over the shorter term. The portfolio is managed in such a manner that the probability of capital losses over one year periods is low.

The launch date is the start date of portfolio. Returns before the launch date are simulated returns based on the portfolio's strategic asset allocation holdings at the launch date, which would not reflect MIC's historic asset allocation views, or any changes, which would have been made to the portfolio holdings over time. For these simulated return calculations, the underlying fund's retail share classes with the longest return histories have been used. For funds with limited return history, the applicable index returns have been used. From the launch date returns are based on an investment in a tracker or index portfolio, which is a time-weighted return and the effect of cash flows are not taken into account. These returns are after the deduction of the portfolio management fee and either before or after the deduction of any platform administration fees (depending on the linked investment service provider / platform on which the tracker or index portfolio is invested) and before financial adviser fees. The portfolio's TIC is an estimated total for the portfolio based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The underlying funds' total investment charges (TIC) are the sum of a fund's total expense ratio (TER) and the transaction costs (TC). All fees include VAT. Returns for periods exceeding one year are annualised. The return for the Consumer Price Index (CPI) is at the end of the previous month. The portfolio's asset allocation is based on the weighted average of the underlying funds in which the portfolio invests using the latest available data. The portfolio's asset allocation may differ from time to time due to market movements, changes to the portfolio and the underlying fund data and limitations. The underlying funds may contain exposure to assets that are invested globally, which may present additional risks. Individual investor returns may differ as a result of platform and adviser fees, the actual investment date, cash flows and other transactions. MIC does not provide a guarantee on the value of the portfolio nor does it guarantee the returns of the underlying funds in the portfolio. The investor acknowledges the inherent risk associated with an investment in the portfolio (currency, investment, market and credit risks) and that capital is not guaranteed. A switch transaction between underlying funds within the portfolio may incur capital gains tax (CGT) for the investor, should the product through which the investor buys the portfolio not be CGT exempt.
